Meeting Professional

You have enough to worry about.

You won't need to worry about me. I will:

- Know the purpose and theme of your meeting and customize my remarks appropriately
- Return phone calls in a professional manner
- Be flexible
- Provide a short, written introduction and be available to review it with the person giving it
- Be dressed appropriately
- Be in the meeting room early to check A/V and other set-ups

- Bring purpose and energy to my opening
- Relate the program to your people and organization
- Interact with and involve the audience throughout the presentation
- Honor the schedule
- Not make a product sales pitch

- React to a problem or emergency professionally and with good humor
- Be available afterwards for questions and comments
- Discuss follow-up strategies to enhance the message
- Accept phone calls from audience members or executives about the program
- Be prudent with my travel and expenses

You will get a very, very good presentation and you will look good.

Here is what folks are saying about Bob Bevard :

The staff was very appreciative...focused...tailored.... I would highly recommend Bob Bevard....

Edwin L. Griffin, Jr., CAE
MPI

With many years experience with a company offering specialized instruction, I tend to scrutinize those instructors with whom I am in contact. In my opinion, Mr. Bevard was probably the best speaker I have ever had the privilege to hear. ...Exceptional.

Julie Sullivan
